PRESTON FURNACE

To Intending Purchasers

 WE would respectfully request a careful reading of this, "OUR FURNACE BOOK," feeling confident that if the intrinsic merits and superior features in the construction of our line of Furnaces are properly understood, that favorable convictions and patronage will follow,

It is universally conceded that we are the largest manufacturers of Warm Air Furnaces in Canada, and that there are more PRESTON FURNACES in successful operation throughout the Dominion than those of any other make.

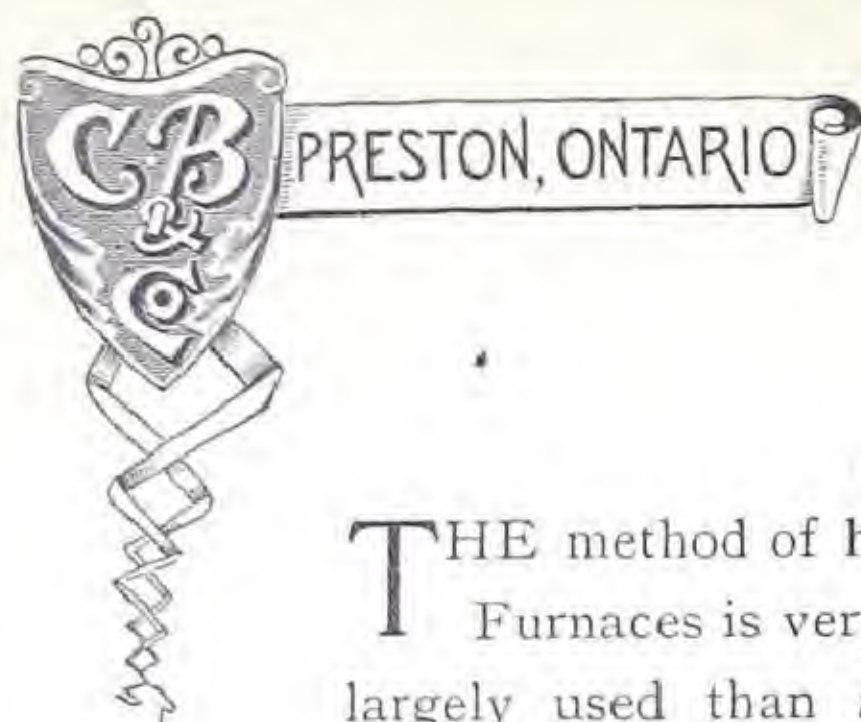

These results are due to the superior construction and merits of our Furnaces, as well as to the fact that we know how to install a system of heating so that best possible results may be obtained. Our vast experience is at your command, and we will gladly give full information to those who desire to warm their buildings efficiently, and with the greatest possible economy.

We therefore enclose with this Catalogue convenient forms for you to furnish necessary information as to the size and construction of your building, which will enable us to give you intelligent estimates and desired particulars, having always in view that a well pleased customer is our best medium to attain still greater success.

Yours faithfully,

CLARE BROS. & CO.

FURNACE HEATING

THE method of heating buildings by Hot-Air Furnaces is very popular, and is being more largely used than all other systems combined.

The reasons for this are obvious, the necessary furnace and attachments costing, as they do, very little more than to provide stoves for the different rooms to be heated, while the subsequent cost for fuel is largely diminished.

A good furnace of ample capacity, properly placed and connected with registers and piping of proper proportions, with a view to best results rather than first cost, combines all the requisites for maintaining a warm, balmy, spring atmosphere throughout the building, regardless of the severe winter weather outside.

The furnace is enclosed by an air-tight casing of galvanized iron or brick. Fresh air is supplied to the bottom of the furnace by means of cold-air ducts, and warm-air pipes connect top of furnace to registers. As soon as the furnace is fired the air about it, becoming warmed, naturally rises up through the pipes, and to take its place fresh air is drawn in through the cold-air ducts—thus a circulation of warm air is created which rapidly floods all rooms in which registers are placed, and desired temperature throughout the building is secured.

These results cannot be secured with stoves, for it is well known that when it is sufficiently warm about a stove it is cold only a short distance from it; besides, stoves take up valuable space in a room, are very dusty and dirty, and require too much attention. Not only this, but we know of many instances where our furnaces are comfortably heating entire dwellings with the same quantity of fuel that was previously required to improperly heat only one room with a stove.

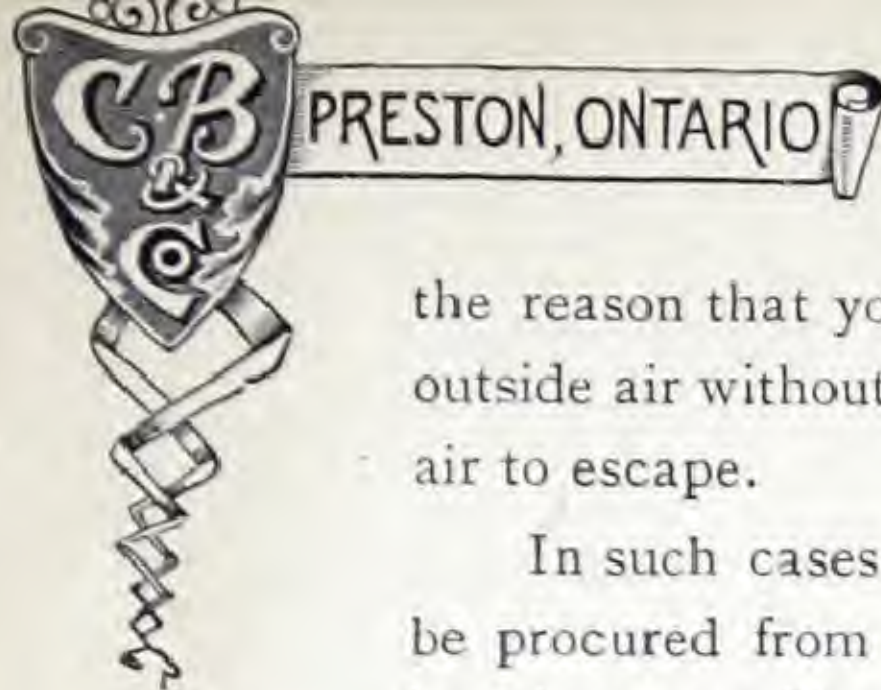

Heating by steam or hot water affords no system of ventilation and is too expensive to ever come into general use, for not only must first cost be considered, as they necessitate the services of experienced persons to attend them, otherwise serious results may be experienced, as well as costly bills for repairs.

Altogether these methods of heating are hardly to be taken into consideration, excepting by those who do not consider expense or in large buildings difficult to reach by other systems.

In determining Source of Cold Air Supply, it is necessary to take into consideration the means for exhausting the cold air in the building.

If no system of exhaust or ventilation can be provided it would be useless to construct a duct to the outside, for the reason that you cannot expect to bring in outside air without some provision for the inside air to escape.

In such cases the supply of cold air must be procured from inside the building, at such locations as will create a free circulation of air throughout the buildings.

A system of ventilation or exhaust can only be procured by heating a shaft or flue sufficiently to create an upward circulation of air. When building, this can easily be provided for by constructing a duct alongside the smoke flue, thereby receiving the needed degree of heat to stimulate an upward current of air. An open fire-place when in use is one of the best means of ventilation, but when not fired very often has the opposite effect.

In buildings with a system of ventilation, we advocate a duct from the outside in addition to those from the inside.

Should the full supply of cold air be drawn from outside it will necessitate the consumption of an excessive quantity of fuel, whereas considerable economy can be practiced by only admitting sufficient outside air to keep up a standard of purity, the amount admitted depending upon the number of people occupying the building.

The construction of the building should also be taken into consideration, for in many buildings there are sufficient crevices and openings about the windows and doors to admit all necessary outside air.

The vast difference in the temperature and gravity of outside and inside air creates very rapid circulation through all openings.

SIZE OF FURNACE

In estimating the size of furnace to heat a specified building we always recommend the adoption of that which is one or even two sizes larger than what is actually necessary, as a slight difference in first cost is more than compensated for by the enhanced results. The difference in consumption of fuel for a given size of furnace and that for one a size larger, to accomplish the same results, is always in favor of the large size.

Especially is this the case when the weather is severe, when the small furnace would require forcing to its utmost capacity, while the larger would do the work easily and be under perfect control.

For this reason it is false economy to purchase a cheaply-constructed furnace which, while it may be capable of giving the desired amount of heat, will actually consume more fuel in one season alone than the difference between its cost and that of a first-class, well-constructed furnace.

Information for those about to Build

IT is advisable that parties intending to build should submit their plans and make their contract for furnace before commencing work upon the building, so that location of the Furnace, Hot-Air Pipe, Smoke and Ventilating Flue may be carefully considered, with a view to getting best possible results.

In many plans that are sent us from the country we notice that the basement or cellar extends under but part of the house, and in such cases is usually under the kitchen or dining room, so that the furnace man has no choice in the matter of location, the condition of affairs dictating that the furnace be placed in one spot, even though that spot is not a good one. In such jobs the result usually is that a house-owner finds a vast improvement over stove heat, but not entirely up to his anticipations, for he compares the heating of his house with that of his more fortunate friend, who had an open basement entirely under his house and the furnace given an opportunity of displaying its accomplishments, by having the most favorable location.

THE SMOKE FLUE

in particular should receive due consideration, for, if

of improper size and deficient, as is so often the case, good results cannot possibly be secured from any furnace, no matter what pains in other respects are employed for its proper working. Defective flues are frequently the cause of much trouble and misunderstandings, causing as they do, great waste of fuel, smoke throughout the building, soiling its contents and walls, as well as that disagreeable liquid—condensed smoke—which drips from the pipes and chimney.

Flues constructed of tile are the best, but when brick flues are used, they should always be smoothly plastered inside, and about square in proportion, as long, narrow flues are never productive of best results. Sizes should range from 8x8 to 12x12 inches or equivalent, according to the size of the building and work required of them.

It is also advisable that contracts be made as early in the season as possible, so that the work can be completed before cold weather begins, thus avoiding the trouble and delay which is incidental to the fall season, when the usual rush of business sets in, besides securing more minute and careful attention to the minor details of the work.

OUR COAL FURNACES

DURING the infancy of the furnace business cast iron constructions were made almost exclusively. These were found to be fairly good heaters, but lacking in durability and quite extravagant in the use of fuel. It was soon discovered that such surfaces of the large castings as were close to the fire would become heated much more rapidly than the remote parts, thus causing unequal expansion and contraction, and resulting in many of the castings cracking so as to allow the escape of gas and dust.

The all cast furnace not proving satisfactory, wrought iron and steel sheet constructions were next experimented with, and a very powerful and economical heater was produced, but after a short test they proved themselves also lacking in durability, as the horizontal portions, such as top of dome and radiator, would rapidly buckle up, warp and become useless, while the upright portions remained unaffected.

We further found by experience that wrought iron was not a suitable material for furnace construction on account of its liability to be destroyed by corrosion, the peculiar nature of the coal soot, especially in damp cellars, soon affecting this material.

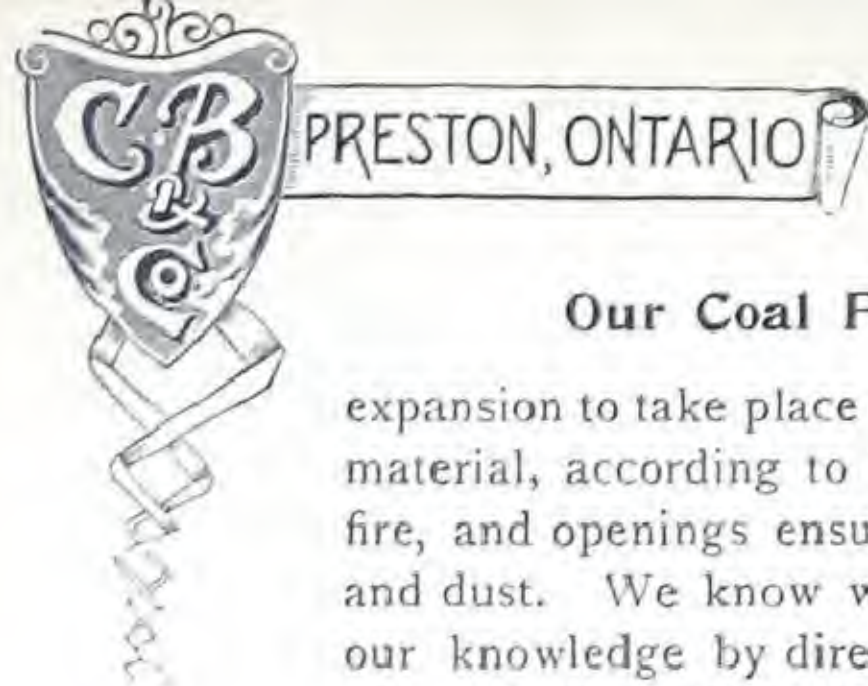

To illustrate the superiority of steel plate over wrought iron for this purpose, among other experiments we built a smoke stack for our boiler, using alternate sections of steel plate and wrought iron of same gauge, and after three years' use we found that the wrought iron sections were completely destroyed, while the steel plate sections remained practically intact.

Thus it became apparent after the unsatisfactory experiments with all cast, all wrought or steel constructions, that a combination of cast iron and steel plate would produce the most satisfactory furnace. This combination was tried and resulted in a most desirable construction, but difficulties presented themselves in combining the two materials so as to prevent the escape of gas and dust. Bolted and rivetted joints, owing to the difference in thickness of the steel plate and cast iron, caused expansion to take place earlier either in one or the other material, according to its position or relation with the fire, and openings ensued, resulting in leakages of gas and dust. We know whereof we speak, having gained our knowledge by dire experience.

Furnaces, as they appear when

Cement joints are entirely out of the question, as cement in a joint cannot withstand the grinding process of expansion and contraction, and gradually wears and falls entirely away.

Unsatisfactory and defective as are such methods of construction, they are the only ones adopted by our competitors.

PATENT FUSED JOINTS.

Fortunately for ourselves we made the important discovery of combining steel plate with cast iron in such a way that no bolts, rivets or cement are required. This principle of construction, which we have patented, is the only one as yet discovered which absolutely and permanently prevents the escape of gas, dust and smoke.

It has been fully tested, having been used in all our "Pleasant Home," "Marvel" and "Steel Dome" furnaces for the past eight years, and we have yet to hear a complaint, so that we are justified in positively guaranteeing that our Patent Fused Joints will prevent the escape of gas and dust.

We are sole owners of the Patent Fused Joint, and the only manufacturers who have this very important feature embodied in the construction of their furnaces.

As we have said, when experiments were made with wrought and steel plate constructions, it was discovered that the upright portions were durable, while the horizontal ones were not. In view of this fact, we have altogether discarded steel tops for domes, and substituted heavy corrugated cast iron tops, which are indestructible.

It will be observed that the radiator on our line of "Pleasant Home" and "Marvel" furnaces is of a horse-shoe shape, and so placed as not to rob the fire-pot of its heat, the top and bottom being constructed of heavy cast iron, oval in shape, while the sides are of heavy steel plate, the joint being made by our Patent Method, so that, virtually speaking, the whole Low Radiator is in one piece.

A division is arranged in this Radiator, and a glance at the cut will show the extensive fire travel produced by this division.

The PRESTON FURNACES are the only ones on the market constructed with a Double Low Radiator, which adds so largely to heating capacity.

These furnaces can be operated with direct draft, causing them to respond quickly when starting fire or when it is low; at other times the gases, smoke and all particles of combustion pass upward into the dome, from whence it is drawn down and requires to travel twice the length of the lower radiator before passing out into the smoke pipe; thus all the products of combustion are retained until all possible heat is extracted from the fuel consumed.

A large dust escape is provided from rear of ash pit direct to chimney, and operated from in front of the furnace.

We, however, found that with the most approved dust flue connection many of our customers still complained of dust. This was caused by shovelling ashes out of the furnace and sifting same in the cellar or basement. Fine light ashes or dust found their way through crevices in floors and underneath doors into the main part of house.

To obviate this we have provided our furnace with large Ash-pan and Sifter, so that above-mentioned dust-creating process is confined entirely within the furnace. In this way no dust can escape into the cellar, and we are positive that we now have the most cleanly furnace on the market.

Owing to their construction these furnaces will burn wood readily. We have quite a number of customers who have used wood exclusively with very satisfactory results.

The feed doors are sufficiently large to admit large, rough wood. They are also provided with a gas burning device. By opening slides in door, air heated is caused to flow in jets over top surface of fuel, igniting the latent gases and resulting in complete and perfect combustion of the coal.

All our Steel Body Furnaces are fitted with Draw Centre Anti-Clinker Dumping and Shaking Grates, which work on ball-bearings and are very easily shaken. They can be completely or partially dumped, and are so set that their surfaces can be raked with a poker when desired. They are simple in construction, durable and economical in operation, and if at any time necessary they can be in a few moments removed and replaced through the ash-pit door without disturbing any other part of the furnace.

Our experience has led us to prefer this Grate in preference to Duplex, Triangular Bar or Dock Ash grates. We believe these to be more suitable for stoves, where the pressure of fuel upon the long red-hot bars is not sufficient to cause them to sag and get out of order, as is often the case when used in furnaces.

An upright Shaker-Bar is provided, with which the grate is effectually operated without stooping.

A nickel-plated Regulator, tastily finished, is supplied with each Furnace, and can be placed at any convenient location, and by means of chains connected to the check damper, and to the lower lift draft in ash-pit door, the fire can at all times, without descending to the cellar, be kept under perfect control, thus saving a large percentage of fuel and utilizing all the heat radiated from the furnace.

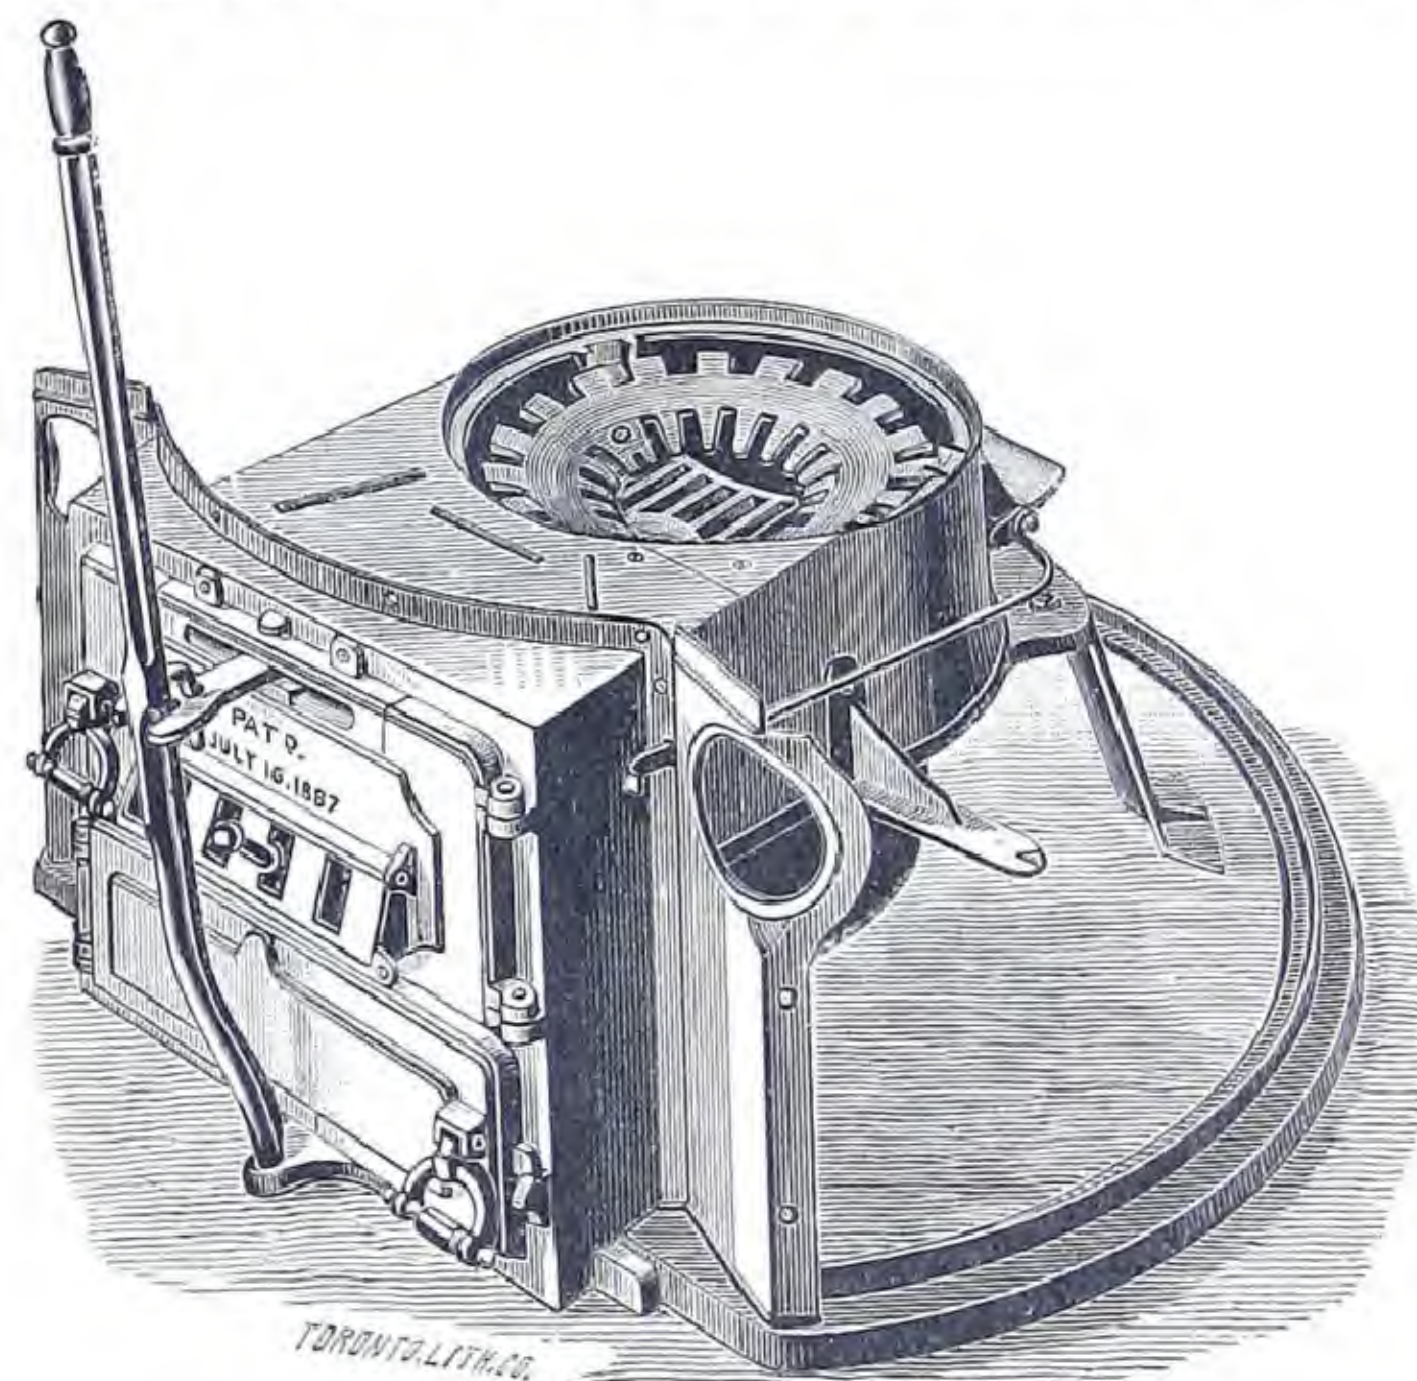

By means of the large adjustable Water Pans which accompany each furnace, any desired degree of moisture in the air can be maintained. The water pan can readily be adjusted to evaporate the required amount of water.

In addition to the patented and special features of our furnaces, they also embody every important convenience for ease of operation. They are made of the best grades of iron and steel plate that can be procured, and of the best proportion that our large experience can dictate.

Taken altogether, we think that any unprejudiced mind will readily admit that the Preston Furnaces have more important features to commend them as powerful and economical heaters than any other furnaces yet introduced.

This assertion is amply substantiated by the many users of our furnaces, a partial list of whom are given in back of catalogue.

Combination Heater

(HOT AIR AND HOT WATER)

Modern architecture often requires an apparatus by which provision can be made for warming such rooms as can not be reached by warm air pipes from Hot Air Furnaces, and economy forbids the use of more than one furnace. To meet this demand we have produced our Hot Air and Hot Water Combination Heater. As will be seen by the illustration, the arrangement is quite simple, and its operation positive and certain.

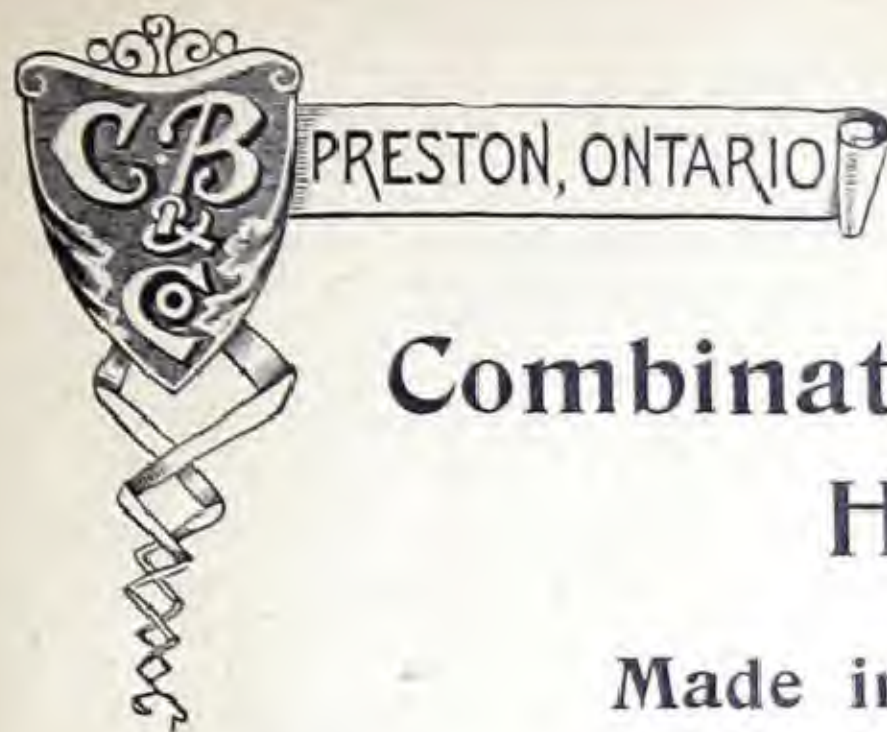

The water heater, it will be seen, is so constructed that the amount of hot water supplied may be varied by using one, two, three or more sections as requirements may demand.

These Heaters have been tried and tested the past four years and are giving splendid results. As regards economy and convenience, we believe they are unequalled. We will gladly give special information when required regarding arrangement of Registers, Radiators, Piping, etc., for any building.

Combination Hot Water Heater

Made in Two Sizes

CUT SHOWS WATER HEATER WITH TWO SECTIONS ATTACHED.

The smaller water heater will fit any of our Steel Body Furnaces, but is more suitable for the two smaller sizes, Nos. 134 and 138. In either of these furnaces it will heat from 300 to 400 feet of inch pipe, and sections added will each heat 100 feet of inch pipe additional.

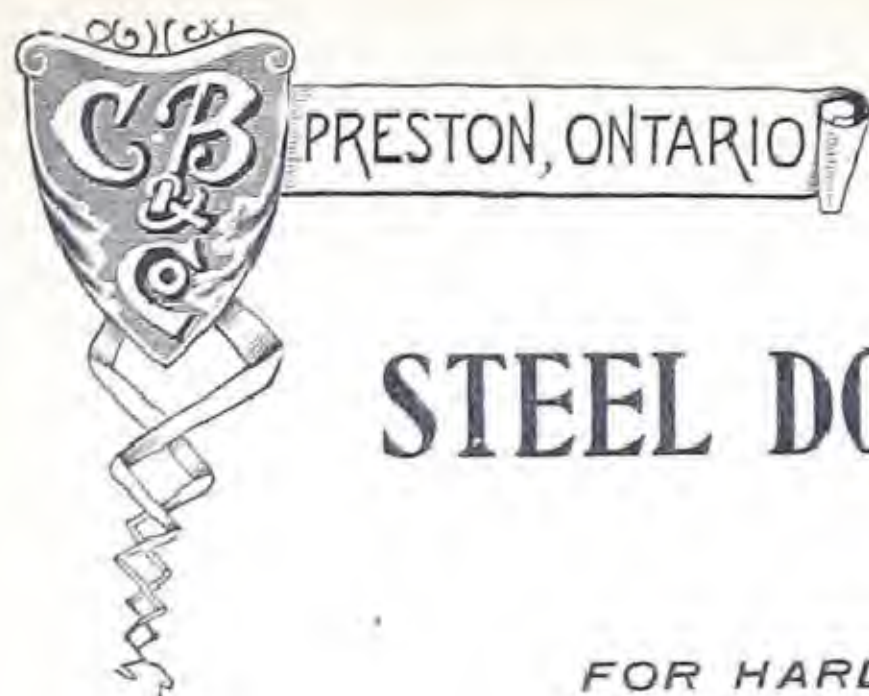

The larger water heater will fit all excepting the two smaller sizes of our Steel Body Furnaces, and will heat 400 to 500 feet of inch pipe, while sections added will each heat 100 feet of inch pipe additional, same as with smaller boiler.

These are very conservative estimates, and under ordinary or favorable circumstances, each heater and section will heat much more than estimated. Upon receipt of particulars in reference to requirements we will be pleased to advise which heater and the number of sections will give best results.

Sanitary Heater

The "Sanitary" is intended to be used when a furnace in the basement would not be practicable.

It is especially adapted for heating school rooms, halls and other large rooms, and can be located in any out of the way part of the room practicable to its operation, and thus take up very little useful space. At the same time it will do the important work of heating all parts of the room alike.

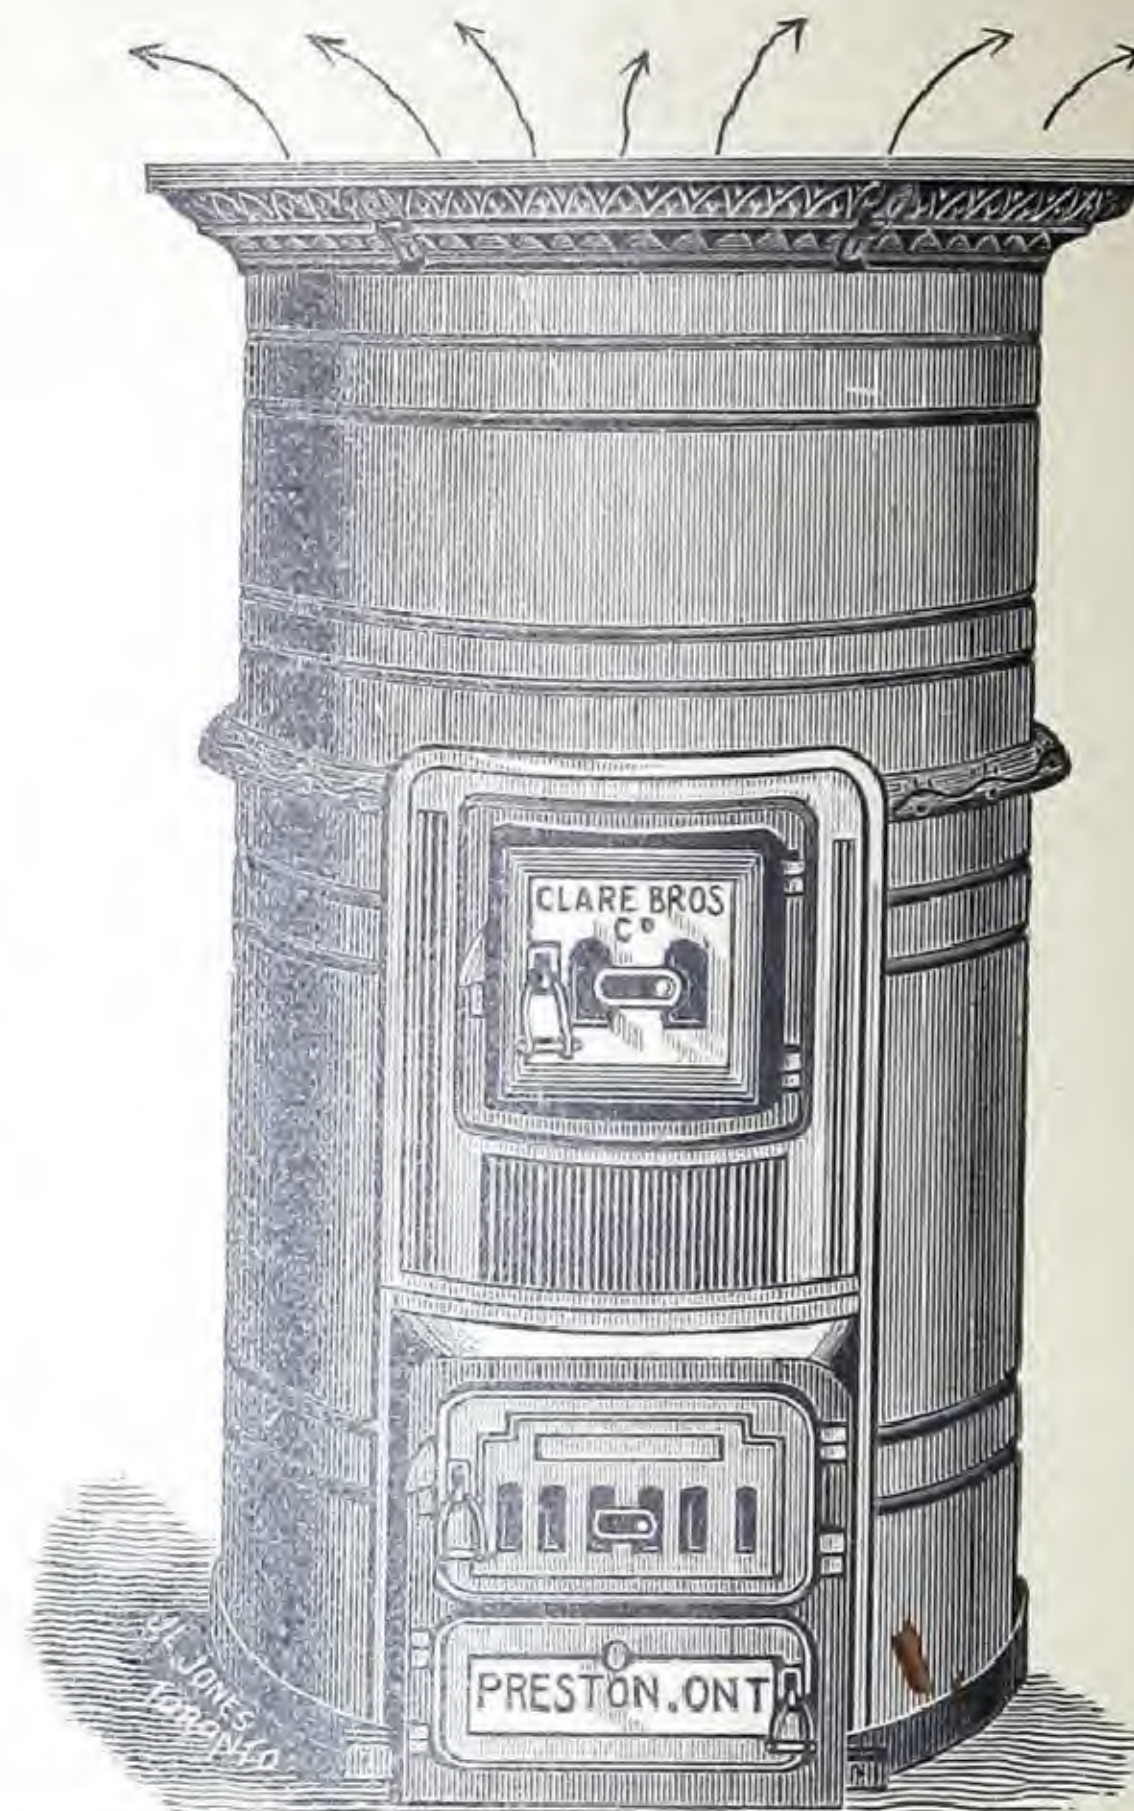

It is simple enough to be understood by anyone and requires less attention than an ordinary stove.

The "Sanitary" is so set that the cold air is drawn from the floor, and in its passage up over the surface of the heater, becomes very warm, and escapes out at top, diffusing itself throughout the room and forcing the cold air to the floor.

By this circulation, evenness of temperature throughout the room is secured and maintained.

If desired fresh air can be introduced from the outside by means of a duct to the bottom of the heater.

We are heating many private dwellings with the "Sanitary," it being placed directly in the hall, and heats the adjoining rooms and up-stairs nicely.

The Hilborn Wood Furnace

MADE IN 2 STYLES, 10 SIZES

When the Hilborn Furnace, twelve years ago, was placed upon the market, it immediately sprang into prominence, and in a few years almost monopolized the Wood Furnace trade of the country. This commanding position it still retains, despite the ineffectual attempts of nearly all rival manufacturers at imitating some of its features.

The Hilborn furnace construction, based on scientific principles, at the time of its introduction, was an entire departure from the old hap-hazard box stove method of furnace construction. The attainment of the highest degree of durability, economy and efficiency were the objects sought in building the original patterns.

Durability is secured by using the best material and by a proper adjustment of weight and thickness of metal, also by the avoidance of all flat surfaces, all parts being curved or arched. The strain incidental to unequal expansion and contraction is entirely obviated by a proper arrangement of the different parts so that each is free to expand or contract without interfering with the other.

Efficiency and economy are secured by presenting sufficient surface to the products of combustion and proportioning the sizes of fire-box and radiators properly, also by so constructing the various parts that every inch of the interior surface can be easily and properly cleaned.

We have from time to time altered and improved the Hilborn as experience dictated, and are now making it in two styles and ten sizes.

DESCRIPTIVE

The body is corrugated and very heavy, with deep ash-pit extending almost the entire length, and fitted with heavy sectional grates.

There are only two sections to the body, which are joined by a cup cement joint, well bolted together, which makes the body practically indestructible.

It has a very large feed door to admit rough, knotty, unsaleable wood, leaving all good wood to be marketed. First cost will therefore be saved in a very few years.

Farmers who have a surplus of wood unfit for the market will find them a great relief from the vexation and annoyance of pulling down and setting up ordinary heating stoves and pipes, wood-boxes, etc.

Handy chain damper to ash-pit, which is operated from rooms above to regulate the draft.

Heavy steel plate drums or radiators, of the best quality that can be procured, with durable cast iron ends and collar connections.

It will be readily observed by the construction of the "Hilborn" that a vast amount of fire travel is provided, and consequently an enormous extent of radiating surface is presented to the action of the fire, resulting in extraordinary, powerful and economical heating qualities.

Convenient cleaner pipes attached to end of each drum and extending through brick work with cap. It can readily be seen how easily and quickly at any time the drums can be thoroughly cleaned, by simply inserting cleaner brush, which accompanies each furnace, through cleaner pipe on end of drums, and forcing all accumulations of ashes and soot down into body of furnace, from whence they are removed with the other ashes.

Direct draft pipe and damper for convenience in starting fire, or to cause it to respond quickly when fire is low.

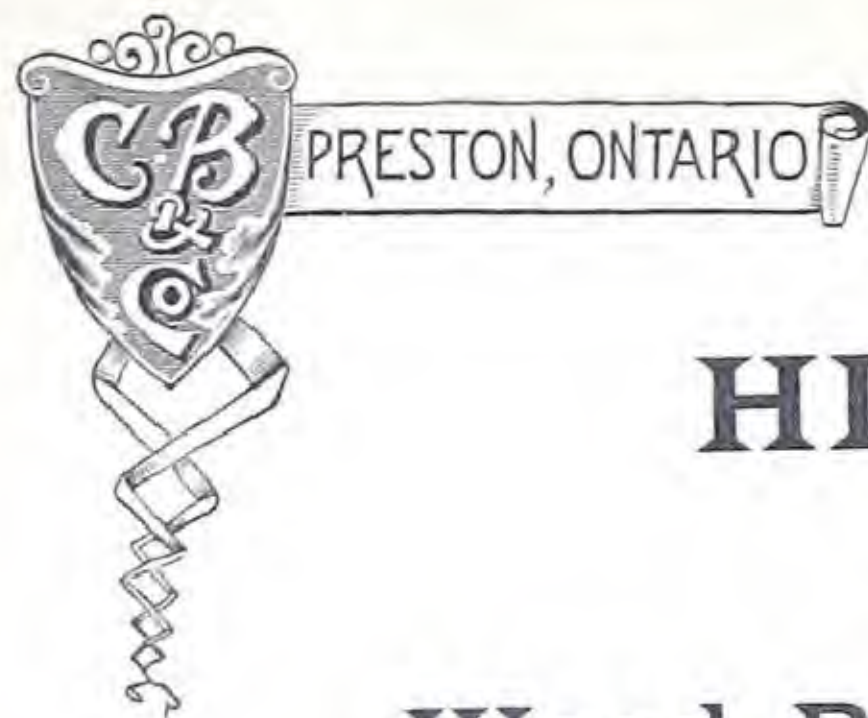

A suitable water pan is supplied with each furnace.

We always recommend that a five-drum furnace be used, as it has more radiating surface than the three-drum furnace, and consequently is more economical, the latter being only intended for very low cellars, in which a five-drum furnace cannot be placed.

The smoke-pipe collar is placed on top drum near the front, but the drum is so arranged that the collar can be moved to either the right or the left side by unscrewing four bolts and shifting.

It can also be arranged that smoke can be taken directly out of end of top drum.

THE MANITOBA

Wood Burning Furnace

TO those in want of a Wood Furnace with round radiator of this description, we offer the MANITOBA, as equal to any of its kind on the market. It has a heavy cast corrugated body, with only one joint, which is a cup joint, and renders the body absolutely smoke and dust proof. The fire door is large and will admit big rough wood.

The Radiator is constructed of heavy cast iron and heavy steel plate, and is so arranged that the fire requires to make a complete circuit of the Radiator before escaping into the smoke pipe. It is arranged so that drafts can be regulated from rooms above.

PIPING

NO definite description, nor any reliable rule, can be given as to the size of pipe required to be used in conducting heated air from the furnace to the various apartments to be warmed.

The skill and judgment of the mechanic under whose supervision the work is directed, must decide in such particulars. It is often the case that in rooms of the same dimensions, different sizes of pipes and registers are necessary, owing to their distance from the furnace and the position of other pipes; also the purpose for which the rooms are to be used, the amount of heat required, etc., etc. For convenience we give the tables of sizes to be used under ordinary circumstances, on page 29. The warm air pipes should have the upper sides all on a level with each other where they are attached to the furnace, whatever may be their size, and in all cases enter as closely under the inner covering of the furnace as possible, always securing as much of an angle of elevation as possible, that the heat may more effectually ascend.

The only power that moves the warm air from the furnace through the pipes is that caused through the tendency of heated air to rise; hence, horizontal pipes do not draw. There must be some elevation, and if there is but little elevation to the pipes for a number of feet, the movement of the air is necessarily very slow. On the other hand, perpendicular pipes draw well and stronger as they have greater height.

Make the pipes with as few turns or elbows as possible from the furnace to the registers, and if necessary to make turns, the elbows should be curved instead of at sharp angles.

In all cases where pipes are carried above the first floor, use a damper in the hot air pipes near the furnace, and keep it closed when the heat is not required in that apartment, as it is not economy to shut off the heat at the register, leaving the pipe constantly filled with hot air, which would radiate its heat in the cellar or walls in which it was located.

To prevent loss of heat, hot air pipes should not be placed in outside walls, if it can be avoided, and when placed in an ordinary joist partition, they must be properly lined and protected from wood work. Closets also afford a convenient avenue for pipes; also chimney flues. It is not advisable to use the flue itself without a pipe, for the brick would absorb much heat. The connection between the register and hot-air pipes is made by a tin register box, which is of a form to fit the pipe on one side and to receive the register on the other side.

It is sometimes necessary to heat two rooms with one warm-air pipe and two registers, in which case a double register box is used, made of sufficient depth to leave a space between the two registers equal to the full size of the hot-air pipe that supplies these registers; also the same space should be provided for in all register boxes, whether for one or more registers.

Hot-air grates without valves should always be used in place of hot-air registers (with valves) when but one is used for each furnace; also, when several registers are used for one furnace, care should be taken to have at least one of these constantly open when the furnace is in use.

How to Set a Hot-Air Furnace to Get the Best Results

THE proper location of a furnace, as well as the sizes and distribution of the warm-air conducting pipes from the furnace, is one of the most important requisites for its successful operation. Upon the proper location of a furnace the successful heating of the house often depends, and it is a matter that requires careful consideration.

There are two general rules for locating a furnace which we will give, and which in the main should be followed either separately or together, if possible. The first one is that the furnace should be located not in the exact centre of the basement, nor in the centre of the space occupied by the registers, but at a point near the centre and in the direction from which the prevailing winds come in the winter time.

The reason for this is that air, being a vapor, is affected by the winds, and when the wind is blowing strong, in bitter weather, the tendency is for the rooms on the further side of the house from the wind to be over-heated, while those against the wind are poorly heated, the registers on the windward side delivering almost no hot air. Therefore to counteract this tendency the furnace should be placed some few feet toward the windward side of the building. This rule in general should be followed in order to get a satisfactory heating of the entire house, but there are often in a house two or three rooms that are used for general or family living rooms, in which the greater part of the day is spent, and it is particularly desirable to have these rooms heated, so the furnace should be located to favor such rooms.

If the draft of the chimney is defective, correct it by increasing its size or height, or by stopping all leaks and openings into it; if of the larger fireplace character, stop it off where it contracts above the fireplace, and run the smoke-pipe up to or above this point. Make the smoke-pipe the full size, as no furnace can work properly without a good draft in the chimney.

Some paltry convenience in the cellar should not be allowed to interfere with the proper location of the furnace, on which its success and economy largely depend.

If two furnaces are to be used, observe the same rule, and if of different size set the larger one where the most work is to be done, or on the cold side of the building. The north-west atmospheric pressure of winter will be overcome by the short pipes, and the natural opposite flow reduced by the longer, securing an equal flow of hot air from all of the pipes.

The rapidity of the current in either direction is readily increased with the pitch of the pipes.

If there will not be a good rise of the hot air pipes, dig out the cellar by all means, if possible, and lower the furnace, as a lack of sufficient pitch to the hot air pipes may cause a loss of heat, from sluggish flow, that can only be counteracted by an extra quantity of fuel each season.

A hot-air pipe should never be taken directly from the front of the furnace, unless to a small upper room or hall, as the ash-pit and coal chute prevent a natural rise of air at this point.

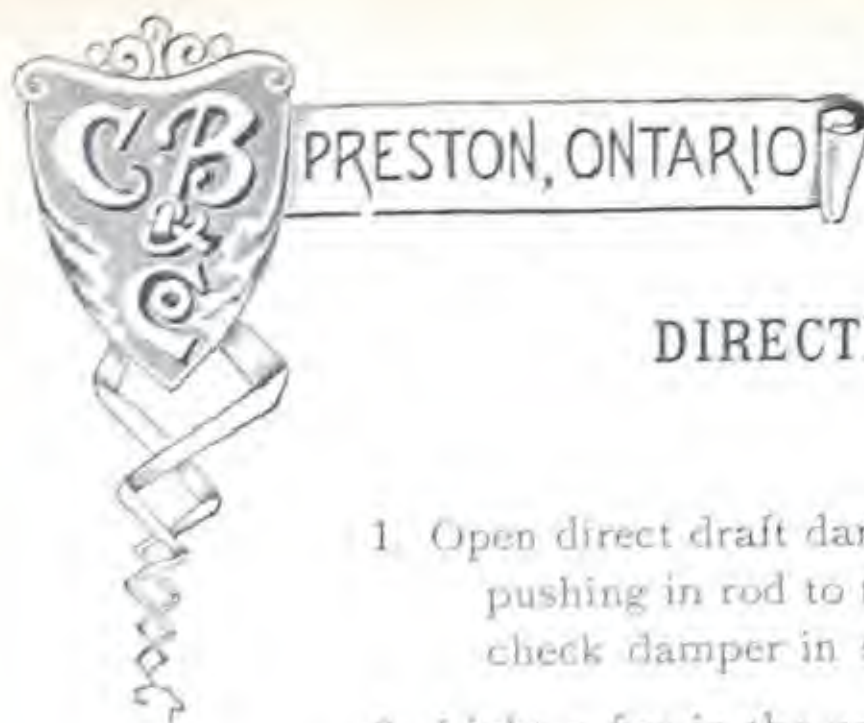

The back of the furnace, if possible, should always be toward where most of the pipes run.

Each pipe leading to second flat should be provided with a damper, directly where it connects with the furnace, to control the distribution of heat. Hot-air pipes should be invariably round, made of good tin, avoiding angles, all bends being made with curves or round elbows, as air follows a circular surface with infinitely less friction, and much more freely and rapidly, than the abrupt turns frequently made.

Piping of ample size, and free circulation of air, are necessary for success, as it is impossible to properly heat a large space with a small pipe which supplies a limited quantity of excessively-heated air, instead of an abundance of wholesome and pleasantly-warmed air, which establishes healthy ventilation. It requires much more hot air to warm the first floor than the stories above, and larger pipes should be used for downstairs rooms. For instance, if a ten-inch pipe is used for a given size north-west room, an eight-inch pipe would be ample for the same sized room above, or a nine-inch pipe for a south-east room downstairs.

When the rooms and halls on the first floor are thoroughly heated, little difficulty will be experienced in heating the rooms above.

OUR FURNACE BOOK

DIRECTIONS FOR REGULATING OUR "MARVEL" AND "PLEASANT HOME WITH RADIATOR" FURNACES

1. Open direct draft damper. This is done by releasing or pushing in rod to the right of feed door; also see that check damper in smoke pipe is closed.
2. Light a fire in the usual way with kindling, adding a few pieces of wood and then the coal.
3. When coal is well ignited, pull out rod to the right of feed door, which will give furnace indirect draft, and causes all fire to pass down into the lower radiator, thus utilizing all heating surface, and running furnace economically.
4. The temperature is regulated by means of the lift damper in ash pit door, and check damper in smoke pipe. When more heat is required open lift damper and close check damper, and vice versa when too much heat is being generated. But never have both dampers open at the same time.
5. When fire requires replenishing open direct draft damper in manner described above; also open dust flue damper, which is done by pushing back the rod to right of ash pit door, then insert shaker rod and agitate the grate well; also clear the grate of clinkers by drawing grate bar in and out a few times, or, if preferable, open ash pit door and clean grate surface with a poker.
6. Separate the ashes from the unconsumed coal in the accumulation on the sifter, by raking them.
7. Close dust flue, by pulling out rod to the right of ash pit door, except in 134 sizes, which works just the opposite; then add fresh fuel and arrange indirect drafts as instructed above.
8. To keep fire over night, close all the doors and drafts in front of furnace, and open the check draft to the extent that experience proves necessary, first putting on sufficient coal to last until morning.

... SPECIAL ...

Never touch the grate unless dust flue is open.

Keep dust damper closed always, except when raking the fire or taking up ashes.

Always keep sifter clean.

Never allow ashes to accumulate and overflow ash pan.

If ashes are allowed to accumulate beneath grate, so that the air cannot properly get to it, it will burn out.

Ashes should never be deposited in the cellar, for the dust arising from handling will find its way to rooms above, which will be blamed to furnace.

When burning coal always keep slides in feed door open more or less.

In order to protect smoke pipes, we recommend that a good wood fire be put in the furnace the last thing in Spring and the first thing in Fall.

These furnaces will not close or open their own dampers, or put on coal, or take up their own ashes, rake the fire, or adjust the hot air damper, but they will, if properly attended to, according to directions, give an abundant supply of pure, warm air, by a very moderate consumption of fuel.

It sometimes occurs, when there is too long a range of smoke pipe and elbows, or when smoke pipe passes through a cold room, or the chimney has not sufficient draft, that the smoke becomes cold too rapidly before escaping out of the chimney, and as a result it condenses and drips. This is due to no fault of the furnace, as the same difficulty frequently occurs in using stoves or any kind of heater. This difficulty is generally overcome, unless the chimney is defective, by covering the smoke pipe with asbestos sheeting, which is not very expensive and can be obtained from your tinsmith. In any case it will have a good effect. By shortening and re-arranging smoke pipe, the difficulty is sometimes overcome.

OUR FURNACE BOOK

THIS rough sketch is given as a suggestion that can be imitated with advantage, as it is readily appreciated how difficult it is for even an expert to derive a correct idea of a house from a written explanation and description, however elaborate it may be, when not accompanied by the roughest or crudest kind of a plan.

If it is an old house, state the size of the smoke flues and which of them can be used, also state which of the rooms are to be heated. If there is any deep girder in the cellar mark its location on plan and state height from cellar floor to bottom of girder. If a new house, and yet to be built, too much importance cannot be given to the proper arrangement for a suitable place for the furnace, as well as the hot-air pipes, especially those in partitions, for on these depend the health and comfort for six months of the year, and no furnace can give good results when not put up properly; therefore see when building is designed and plans drawn that provision is made so that furnace and piping can be properly located, for on this also depends the size of the coal bill and the durability of the furnace.

How to heat a house should be thoroughly considered before it is built.

TESTIMONIALS

The strongest guarantee we can give of the merits and superiority of the Preston Furnaces is the genuine and universal endorsement found in the following testimonials, many of which have come to us unsolicited. So widely are they known, and such general satisfaction are they giving, that there is scarcely a mail but what brings us some pleasant words from those who are using our Furnaces. We have several thousand testimonials on file, but for want of space only include the following in this Catalogue.

From D. HENDERSON, Acton

April 22nd, 1895.

I have much pleasure in stating that the No. 138 Marvel Coal Furnace placed in my house by your agent, Mr. Geo. Havill, three years ago, has proved satisfactory in every respect.

From JOHN KENNEY, Acton

April 22nd, 1895.

I have used for the last three years a No. 138 Marvel coal furnace put in by your agent, Mr. Geo. Havill, and can recommend it for heating capacity and economy of fuel.

Acton, April 22nd, 1895.

This is to certify that the two Hilborn furnaces placed in the Public School here three years ago are doing their work well, and we would recommend them to trustees who purpose heating schools with wood.

GEO. HINDS, Chairman.

From Dr. S. A. McKEAGUE, Acton

April 23rd, 1895.

Having used a No. 138 Marvel Wood Furnace for the past three years in my house, put in by your agent, Mr. Geo. Havill, can recommend it to intending purchasers as a good article.

From ANGUS McDONALD, Alexandria

I have used one of your furnaces this winter, and have pleasure in saying that it gives me every satisfaction. It burns no more wood than the ordinary stove, and, in my opinion, gives double the heat, and is absolutely gas and dust proof.

From THOS. RYAN, Alliston

Having purchased one of your No. 45 Hilborn Furnaces from your agent, Mr. J. J. Cain, and having tested it during the past two winters, I must say that I am in every way pleased with it. It has thoroughly heated my large house with at least one-third less fuel.

From D. D. McPHEE, Alexandria

I have used one of your No. 134 furnaces, and would recommend it as being a good heater and gives good satisfaction. It is easily attended to, and does not burn any more coal than the ordinary coal stove.

From ROBERT HANSEY, Alliston

The Hilborn Furnace which I purchased from your agent, Mr. Cain, has given entire satisfaction. I would not be without it for twice its cost.

From J. J. Cain, Alliston

April 26th, 1895.

I have one of your No. 45 Hilborn Furnaces in my building, and it gives entire satisfaction. I have also put in about one hundred of your furnaces, wood and coal. They are all giving good satisfaction. Have not had one complaint.

From W. T. WILKINSON, Amherstburg

I have had one of your furnaces in use now for two years, and find it giving very good results, both for heat and economy of fuel.

From M. B. TWOMEY, Amherstburg

The coal furnace of your manufacture, purchased for my residence, has given me entire satisfaction in every respect.

From J. H. C. LEGATT, Amherstburg

March 23rd, 1891.

I beg to say that I have been using one of your coal furnaces for the past three seasons, and can safely say that it has given me every satisfaction. I consider it ahead of any other furnace I have yet seen in the market.

From GILBERT BERTRAND, Amherstburg

March 24th, 1891.

The furnace which I purchased from you suits me splendid. My house, although quite open, is heated thoroughly.

OUR FURNACE BOOK

From J. W. PERLFORD, Amherstburg

It affords me pleasure to say that the No. 134 Pleasant Home Furnace, put in my residence in the fall of 1889, has in every way given me the best of satisfaction. If all persons who are using your furnaces are as well satisfied as I am, I feel sure your trade must increase greatly from year to year.

From J. H. LOCKHART, Amherstburg

I have been using one of your Hilborn Furnaces for the past two seasons, and can say that it has given me entire satisfaction. I heat my entire house with it, and I do not consider that I consume more wood than would be required to run a medium sized box stove, while it heats fully three times the space.

From Dr. F. A. JONES, Amherstburg

February 20th, 1891.

I purchased one of your No. 134 Pleasant Home Furnaces from your agent, Mr. D. L. Wigle, and began to use it as soon as heat was needed in my house, and I find it has been burning ever since. It heats my house thoroughly on not more than three tons of coal up to the present, which is less than I would have burned in an ordinary base burner, and I have heated almost double the space. In fact, I consider that I have the finest thing in the heating line that is manufactured, both for economy and cleanliness.

From JOHN ANDERSON, Arthur

April 30th, 1895.

The County Council of Wellington two years ago made an addition to the Registry Office for the North Riding of Wellington, and purchased through your Mr. Moffat one of your 142 Marvel Furnaces, which is a good heater and does its work well. Before the addition was made two large base burners failed to heat the office. This furnace heats double the space and with less expense.

From REV. J. P. DOHERTY, Arthur

April 30th, 1895.

This is to certify that the hot air furnaces of Messrs. Clare Bros. & Co., of Preston, placed in the church here by Mr. R. Martin, have given us good satisfaction.

From R. MARTIN, Arthur

April 30th, 1895.

I also put one of your No. 45 Hilborn Furnaces in my shop some ten years ago, and it is just as good as the day I put it in. I need heavy fires sometimes as I have a large place to heat, the building being 22 x 66, shop and workshop and upstairs as well, and I have no hesitation in recommending your furnaces to any one in need of a furnace. The cost of keeping the place heated is small to what it would cost to heat it with stoves.

From M. DOWED, Arthur

April 20th, 1895.

This is to certify that the No. 45 Hilborn furnace placed in my hotel by your agent, Mr. R. Martin, is giving the best of satisfaction. My hotel, which is a large one, has been rendered comfortable the past winter, although it was a hard one.

From THOS. VANARNAM, Athens

April 15th, 1891.

The Pleasant Home Furnace which I purchased from your agents, Messrs. Kincaid & Son, of this place, has heated my house for the past two years very satisfactorily. It requires but little attention and I consider it very economical in the consumption of coal.

From J. P. LAMB, Athens

I purchased from your agent, Mr. Moffat, a No. 146 Furnace, feeling a little doubtful that it would do all Mr. Moffat said, but am delighted with the way it works, heating my store, 22x60, and first flat upstairs, carrying heat by hot air pipe 55 feet to my dental office, and in the coldest of weather it was perfectly heated. It does the work that would require three stoves, and I think nearly saves the fuel of two, burning either wood or coal.

From J. R. RUTHERFORD, Druggist, Aurora

June 23rd, 1886.

I have used one of Clare Bros.' small coal furnaces during the past winter, both in my house and drug store, and am highly satisfied with both, and confidently recommend them to anybody requiring a furnace.

From R. W. HILLARY, M.D., Aurora

June 22nd, 1887.

I had a large sized furnace made by Clare Bros. & Co., Preston Ont. (No. 55), in my house this last winter, and it did all the makers claimed for it; our house was thoroughly heated, and the saving in fuel a marked item. We have been so pleased with it that we strongly recommend it to all requiring comfort and economy.

From W. C. CLEFT, Aurora

March 2nd, 1891.

I have much pleasure in recommending your Pleasant Home Furnace. I have two of them in use at present. I have used one of them three winters in my store. It takes but little more coal to run them than an ordinary coal stove. They are easily managed, simple and strong.

OUR FURNACE BOOK

From T. S. HARE, Aylmer

May 3rd, 1895.

Having used in my house for the last two years one of your Hilborn Furnaces, I can recommend it to any one wanting a warm house in the coldest weather. I can also say that it has not cost me ten cents for repairs since I put it in.

From TILLEY & POUSTIE, Aylmer

May 3rd, 1895.

Your agent, Mr. T. Wooster, placed one of your Hilborn Furnaces in our store two years ago, which I can assure you has proved very satisfactory. It is a powerful heater, economical on fuel, clean, and very easy to manage. I can heartily recommend it.

From G. VAIL, Aylmer

April 30th, 1895.

From T. SAWERBY, Aylmer

I have used your furnace in the Baptist parsonage for two years, and I can truly say that I have never seen its equal as a heater. It is economical and pleasant to use. I can recommend it to any who desire such a thing.

From W. CONN, Aylmer

May 2nd, 1895.

I put one of your No. 55 Hilborn Furnaces in my house ten years ago, which has given me entire satisfaction, and has never cost me $1 for repairs since it was placed in the house. I can highly recommend it to all parties wanting a first-class heater.

From JAS. HARTFIELD, Aylmer

May 3rd, 1895.

I can cheerfully recommend your Pleasant Home Furnace, as I have never seen any equal to it, and I have used other furnaces. I have two of other makes in my buildings in London, which I do not think are anything beside yours. I would not use any other furnace if putting in more.

From J. B. HUFFMAN, Aylmer

April 30th, 1895.

We take pleasure in expressing our entire satisfaction with the Hilborn Furnace put in the parsonage by your agent, Mr. T. Wooster. We would strongly recommend this furnace to intending purchasers. We cannot say too much in its praise.

From GEO. MORRISH, Aylmer

May 2nd, 1895.

I have much pleasure in expressing the great satisfaction I have experienced from using your Hilborn Furnace. I have found it all that it was recommended to be, and would say that parties putting in furnaces cannot go astray in using this furnace, feeling satisfied that there is no better on the market.

From J. B. HAMBRIDGE, Aylmer

May 4th, 1895.

I have been using one of your 55 Hilborn Furnaces for the past three years, and it has given excellent satisfaction, and have no hesitation in recommending these furnaces to any one wanting a first-class heater.

From JOHN WYLLIE, Ayr

I have much pleasure in stating that the No. 138 Pleasant Home Furnace placed in my building by your agent in this town, has given me perfect satisfaction, heating both stories with less fuel and a great deal less labor than with stoves. I can safely recommend this furnace to any one as a first-class article.

From WALTER WILLISON, Ayr

I have pleasure in saying that I am thoroughly satisfied with No. 138 Pleasant Home Furnace placed in my residence. It comes up to all the merits you claim for it. It is easily managed and I cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of a good furnace.

From JOHN ANDERSON, Ayr

The No. 138 Pleasant Home Furnace, with radiator, placed in my house last fall by your agent, H. Gmelin, has given every satisfaction as regards heating, economy of fuel and ease of management. Would recommend them to all requiring a furnace.

From JNO. FENNELL, Berlin

May 28th, 1895.

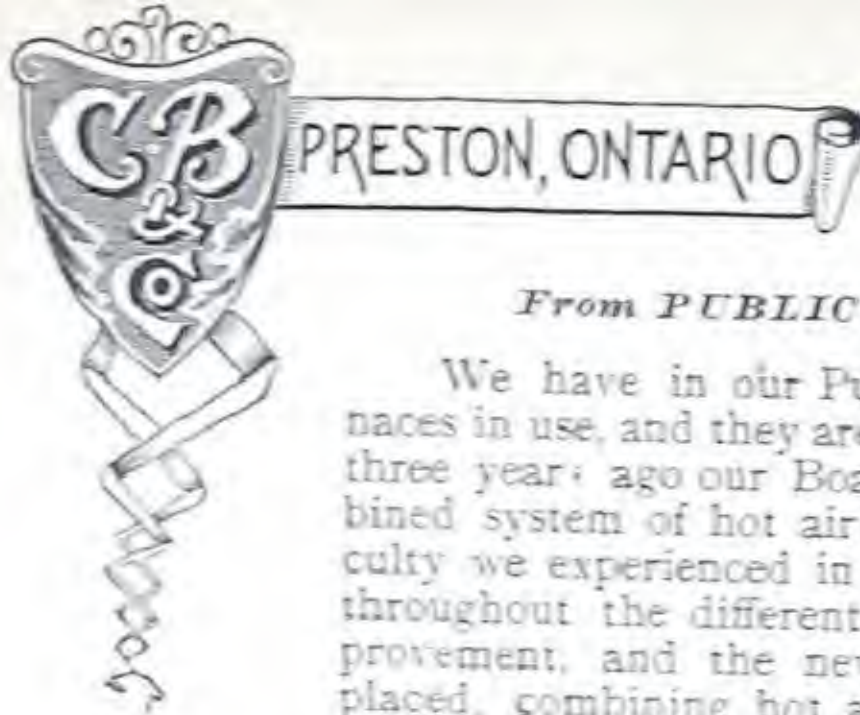

Some years ago you placed in my house a hot air furnace. The house being a large one it was found impossible to heat it with hot air alone, but since adding hot water the combination system gives entire satisfaction. The heat is now better distributed, and parts of the building not formerly reached with hot air are now made comfortable.

From DANIEL L. KNECHTEL, Berlin

March 13th, 1891.

I am pleased to state that the No. 134 Pleasant Home Furnace which I bought from your agents has given me every satisfaction, and would recommend it to the public, especially as a coal and wood burner.

From PUBLIC SCHOOL BOARD, Berlin

We have in our Public School a number of your furnaces in use, and they are giving general satisfaction. About three years ago our Board decided to introduce the combined system of hot air and hot water because of the difficulty we experienced in having the heat well distributed throughout the different rooms. We find this a great improvement, and the new furnaces you have of late years placed, combining hot air and hot water, are meeting our requirements well. The rooms are warmed throughout and more cheaply than with hot air only.

P. S. LAUTENSCHLAGER, Chairman.

From C. POHLMAN, Berlin

April 1st, 1895.

The No. 138 Marvel Furnace Messrs. P. Gies & Co. placed in my house two years ago gives me entire satisfaction. Can heat my house, 22 x 46, 2 stories high, on less than 4 tons of coal.

From REV. F. VON PIRCH, Pastor Ev. Luth. St. Peter's Church, Berlin

May 23rd, 1887.

After having used your furnaces all last winter, I am now able to say that they give complete satisfaction, although the church is very large, having a seating capacity for over 1,200 persons. The two furnaces you put in for us have, even in the coldest weather, properly warmed the building.

From F. H. ILLING, Berlin

March 13th, 1891.

The No. 134 Marvel Furnace which was put in my house last fall has given splendid satisfaction. The great advantage over many other furnaces is its ash sieve, by which, with very little trouble, ashes can be sifted and emptied without messing the cellar in the least; also the vapor pan, which, when properly attended to, always keeps the air moist. I can cheerfully recommend your furnaces to any one. It is easily managed, no dust, requires but little care to keep clean, and gives good satisfaction.

From GEO. STEINMITZ, Berlin

March 1st, 1891

I thought at the time you put an 18 Comfort Furnace in my house, that you would have the pleasure of taking it out again, as you had agreed to do providing it did not give satisfaction. I am pleased to say that after a fair trial it heats my house thoroughly. We have plenty of heat and no gas or dust, and the furnace is satisfactory in every respect.

From REV. FATHER SPETZ, Berlin

March 28th, 1891.

The No. 152 Marvel Furnace which you placed in the Catholic Church in Waterloo, has been giving the best of satisfaction, and I cheerfully recommend it to any one.

From GEO. PROUDFOOT, Berlin

May 13th, 1891.

I am using one of Clare Bros. & Co.'s Furnaces, No. 138 Marvel, put in by their dealers, Messrs. Gies, Wolfhard & Co., and am pleased to say it gives me entire satisfaction. There has been no dust or gas from the furnace, and it has heated my whole house last winter with less than six tons of coal. I am much pleased with the ventilation it provides, and am satisfied that the air is changed every few minutes. It is easy to manage, responds quickly, and I can heartily recommend it to any one requiring a furnace.

From H. J. HALL, Berlin

March 13th, 1891.

Having at present one of your No. 138 Marvel Furnaces in my house, I have great pleasure in recommending it to the public. From JOHN MOSSER, Berlin

March 12th, 1891.

The two No. 136 Steel Dome Furnaces which your agents placed in my two tenement houses, which I built last summer, have given every satisfaction. The tenants are well satisfied in every respect, especially with the small amount of fuel they consume. I may want another furnace this year. If I do I will certainly give you the order.

From BENJAMIN GODBOLT, Berlin

March 14th, 1891.

The No. 138 Pleasant Home Furnace which I bought from you in the fall of 1889, gives entire satisfaction in every respect. It is easy to manage, no escape of gas, and requires but a small quantity of fuel. I only used six tons of coal last winter and am well satisfied.

From THOS. HENDERSON, Berlin

March 5th, 1891.

Having purchased one of your No. 134 Marvel Furnaces last fall, under representations which your agent made that it would give me enough heat and not consume more than five tons of coal, I am pleased to say that it has heated the house comfortably on four tons of coal. It has been less trouble to manage than a base burner.

OUR FURNACE BOOK

From J. LANDRETH & CO., Chemists, Berlin

March 16th, 1891.

Having used one of your No. 18 Comfort Furnaces in our store for the past two years, we have no hesitation in expressing our opinion of its good qualities. It has given entire satisfaction in every respect, and the most remarkable advantage being that we do not have a shower of coal dust in the shop every time the furnace is attended to. It is very easily regulated and economical in fuel. In fact, it combines all the essential good points of a first-class heater. We have much pleasure in recommending the "Comfort" to anyone requiring a reliable article.

From ECONOMICAL MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE CO., Berlin

January 15th, 1891.

The combination Hot Air and Hot Water Steel Body Furnace, received from your firm in 1889, has proved to be all that is claimed of it. We can safely recommend this furnace for use in offices, public buildings, schools and churches.

From MOSES ESHLEMAN, Berlin

February 20th, 1891.

This is the third winter I have used the No. 136 Steel Body Furnace manufactured by your firm and put in by your agent, Mr. Moffat, in the fall of 1888, and I have much pleasure in stating that it has given entire satisfaction. It is a good heater and very economical in fuel. It is also free from dust and ashes and easily regulated.

From DANIEL WEBER, Berlin

February 21st, 1891.

The No. 146 Marvel Furnace, which your agents, Messrs. Gies, Wolfhard & Co., put in for me last fall, has more than filled the bill. My house is built of brick and the furnace has about 45,000 cubic feet of space to heat, and up to the present time I have only used about three and a half tons of coal for this winter, and I can heat the whole house very comfortably in the coldest of weather, and I feel confident that with proper arrangement there is no cleaner or more economical furnace in the market. I therefore have much pleasure in recommending the Marvel Furnace to any one in want of a first-class heater.

From H. F. BURGESS, Rector St. Paul's Church, Bethany

March 25th, 1891.

The No. 138 Marvel Furnace, which your agents, Messrs. Staples & Noble, put in my house, has proved quite a success, heating the house, which, on account of its location, is hard to heat. The furnace furnishes an even temperature of 65 degrees. It is much less trouble than stoves and does not consume the amount of fuel.

From T. A. CAMERON, Manager Bank of Commerce, Blenheim

May 1st, 1895.

I have much pleasure in stating that the furnace put in the bank by your agent, Mr. E. H. Spackman, two years ago, has proved very satisfactory in every particular, one of its special features being its small consumption of fuel. The only fault—if so it may be termed—we have found with it is that it keeps the office too warm. To any one wanting a furnace, I have no hesitation in recommending one of your make.

From H. W. McTAVISH, Blenheim

May 1st, 1895.

After having a good fair trial of your furnace, No. 152 Marvel, placed in the Methodist church some time ago by your agent, Mr. Spackman, would say it has been very satisfactory in every respect, and well calculated for schools, churches or any large building.

From J. G. EMIGH, Blyth

From JOHN BROCKEST, London

April 24th, 1895.

I have handled most makes of furnaces on the market, and must say that your Marvel excels all for cleanliness, ease of management and economy of fuel. I consider your fused joints the best, as they do away with all bolts and cement. The grate for sifting and the ash pan are good features. I have set up some sixty of your furnaces, and have had no complaints, which is the best recommendation I could give you.

From J. B. TALBOT, Inspector of Public Works, London

July 10th, 1895.

We are glad to be able to say that we are perfectly satisfied with the three No. 170 Marvel Furnaces, placed in the County Court House here, by your local agent, Mr. John Brockest. A thorough testing during the past winter enables us to say that we find them to be powerful heaters, economical in the consumption of fuel, and fully up to our expectations. We desire also to express our satisfaction with the manner in which the furnaces were placed and connections made. We cheerfully recommend them to all intending purchasers.

From E. DAVIS, London

From S. TENNANT, Lucknow

May 29th, 1895.

I purchased a No. 45 Hilborn Wood Furnace, manufactured by Messrs. Clare Bros. & Co., of Preston, and all I wish to say is that the furnace has fulfilled all that you represented it to do, and more, too. As each winter passes I think the more of it. It is very economical in fuel and I think it is also very durable. I think that whoever lives to see twenty years hence, my furnace will be doing as it is now, perfectly heating my house, which is large and requires quite a lot of heat. I would not go back to stoves should I have to pay double the price I paid for it.

From T. F. CAIN, Lucknow

May 29th, 1895.

You ask me to say how I am suited with my furnace. After using it for three years in my hotel I am more than pleased. As each winter passes I think how fortunate I was in purchasing the furnace I did. If there is any fault at all my house is too warm, that being the constant cry of the travellers who stay here. And I would ask anyone who wishes to find out, to come any time, it matters not when, even should it be twenty below zero; my house is always ready and always warm. I cannot recommend it too highly.

From G. W. FALCONER, Norwich

April 25th, 1895.

The No. 33 Hilborn Furnace put in my residence about eight years ago by Messrs. T. Batty & Co., of this town, has always and is still giving the best of satisfaction. I do not think it can be excelled.

From A. J. DAVIS, Norwich

April 29th, 1895.

The No. 45 Hilborn Furnace put in my residence six years ago by Messrs. T. Batty & Co., of Norwich, has given me the very best results possible. I am well pleased with it and can heartily recommend it.

From J. V. MAGEE, Norwich

April 26th, 1895.

For about seven years I have been heating my store and dwelling with one of your No. 55 Hilborn Furnaces. It has given me such thorough satisfaction that it is with pleasure I add my testimonial, and say that I recommend it as the best wood furnace on the market.

From THOS. RORK, Norwood

March 28th, 1895.

Having purchased one of your hot air furnaces, and had it placed in my house about eight years ago, I find that it has given the best of satisfaction in every respect. It has never caused any trouble or expense up to the present time, and from all appearance will not for some time to come.

From J. DAVIDSON, Norwood

March 28th, 1895.

It affords me pleasure to certify that after a trial of seven years the wood furnace manufactured by Clare Bros. & Co., of Preston, has given me excellent satisfaction. Nearly all the heat generated in this furnace is thrown into the rooms through the hot-air registers, and for the quantity of wood consumed the results are very satisfactory. After burning all kinds of wood for that time you can scarcely tell the furnace has been used, so little effect has the fire had upon it. I can recommend it as a healthful and economical way of heating.

From J. B. PEARCE, Norwood

April 5th, 1895.

In answer to your agent's inquiry I beg to state that on the 29th October, 1888, I had one of your largest Hot Air Furnaces, a No. 65, placed in my dwelling. Through seven winters in constant use the fire grates are the only parts requiring renewal. I have never expended five cents on repairs since your furnace was put in, which speaks for its excellency and construction.

From G. A. Pettigrew, M.D., Norwood

March 26th, 1895.

This is to certify that I have one of Clare Bros. & Co.'s furnaces in use for about eight years, and find that it is still giving me good satisfaction.

From JNO. FINLAY, Norwood

April 6th, 1895.

I cannot praise your furnace, No. 45, too highly. It has been thoroughly tested, having been in my house since 1889. I may say that it takes only eight cords of two foot wood to heat the house perfectly for the winter, and that means very little when you take into consideration the size of the house, which is 24 x 36, two flats, and also the kitchen, 17 x 26.

From W. E. ROXBURGH, Norwood

April 3rd, 1895.

Having had one of your No. 65 Wood Furnaces put in my dwelling about eight years ago, I am pleased to report the very good satisfaction it has given me. With the exception of replacing a section of the fire grate, it has cost neither trouble nor expense, and to all appearance will yet be good for many years to come. I may also say that as a fuel economiser I know of none its superior.

From L. P. FORD, M.D., Norwood

March 27th, 1895.

I have much pleasure in testifying to the many excellent qualities of the furnace manufactured by Clare Bros. & Co., of Preston. Mine has been in use for six years, and does its work as thoroughly as when first put in. It has never needed repairing, has never smoked, has not even turned the joists only ten inches above it the slightest brown, and so far as I can see it is as good a furnace as when new.

From HUGH QUINN, Ottawa.

Your furnace has done all that you recommended it to do—no dust, no gas, and a perfectly clean heater in every way. I wonder that you are not placing more in this city. Several people have called on me who have other warm air heaters, and complain of escaping gas, dust and great waste of fuel, and are sorry they have not one of yours. I think your furnace has no equal, and after five years trial I think I can speak as above.

From C. McPHERSON, Orillia

April 29th, 1895.

You have asked me to give you a testimonial in regard to the working of my furnace. I do so with much pleasure, as the wood furnace you put in for me in the fall of 1893 has given me the best of satisfaction, and I think any person intending putting in a wood furnace cannot do better than to purchase a Hilborn furnace.

I have in my house one of your Hilborn Wood Furnaces, which has been in use seven years and gives me good satisfaction.

From HUGH CAESAR, Shelburne

The furnace which I purchased of you, through Mr. A. B. Noble, has been in use for five years and has given me entire satisfaction. At first it smoked and leaked and I blamed the furnace, but I had my chimney rebuilt and I would not ask for better results.

From W. E. HOOKER, Scotland

April 25th, 1895.

The furnace you placed in my store last fall fills the bill in every respect. I examined all the furnaces made in Canada and got a good knowledge of the furnaces before I bought, and I have no reason to regret my choice, as I think the Hilborn the best furnace made.

From J. B. McNALLY, Simcoe

April 25th, 1895.

I have used your Wood Furnace for two years. I have a large house with twenty-two rooms, and we have all been kept comfortable.

From LODO COLLVER, Simcoe

April 25th, 1895.

I had a No. 35 Hilborn Furnace placed in my house last fall by J. D. Murdoch & Co., and although it was very cold we were all kept very comfortable.

From REV. W. A. YOUNG, Simcoe

April 25th, 1895.

Mr. Murdoch asked me to state my opinion of the combination furnace supplied him from Clare Bros. & Co., of Preston. I take pleasure in saying that I am well satisfied therewith. It has been in use since January 1st to this date without once going out, and kept the whole house comfortable. I regard the dust, damper and ash grate as especially valuable features, and the hot water attachment is not only satisfactory as it is, but would bear greater development at no appreciably greater loss of fuel. As to the consumption of coal, it has used not quite five tons during the above period.

From Mrs. M. HURSH, St. Thomas

February 7th, 1895.

I am pleased to say that the No. 138 Marvel Furnace which Mr. Hamilton placed in my house gives me good results, and I am perfectly satisfied with the way it works. It is a good heater and is easily regulated.

From JOHN GILBERT, St. Thomas

February 7th, 1895.

The Pleasant Home which I purchased from your agent, Mr. Hamilton, last fall is all that it is claimed to be. I used it with both wood and coal and found it equally satisfactory with either. I would not be without it or change it for any other kind.

From E. A. GUSTIN, M.D., St. Thomas

February 7th, 1895.

This is to certify that the No. 146 Pleasant Home Furnace, with low radiator, which was placed in my house by Mr. Hamilton, is a perfect success in every respect. It is very easy on fuel, is a great heater and entirely dust proof. I can highly recommend this furnace and also Mr. Hamilton.

From MRS. TRAVERS, St. Thomas

February 7th, 1895.

The No. 138 Marvel Furnace placed in our residence on Pearl St. last fall by your Mr. Hamilton, is more than a success in every way. It is very easy on coal, is very clean and easily managed. We can recommend this furnace to any one. The ash sifter is a great saving of labor and dirt.

From E. FULLER, St. Thomas

February 7th, 1895.

This is to certify that Mr. A. E. Hamilton, of the firm of G. A. McMurtry & Co., of this city, placed in the basement of the Wilcox House, of which I am proprietor, one No. 152 Marvel Furnace with low radiator, and I wish to state for the benefit of those intending to purchase a furnace that this one is giving splendid satisfaction. We have 90,000 cubic feet to heat, which other furnace men told me could not be heated with less than two furnaces. We have without running the furnace near to its full capacity kept it to 75 degrees the coldest day of this severe winter, and I can willingly recommend this furnace.

From T. W. DUNCOMBE, M.D., St. Thomas

February 7th, 1895.

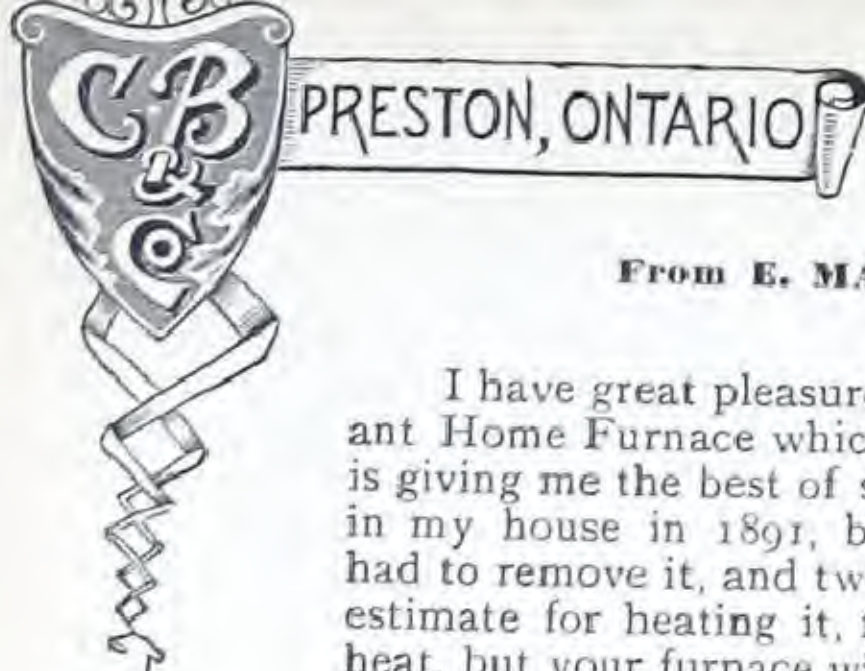

I must say that I take great pleasure in recommending your No. 146 Pleasant Home Furnace. It has given perfect satisfaction as regards to heat, small quantity of coal consumed and the absence of dust. I have tried three different furnaces and find this superior to them all.

From R. A. PENHALE, St. Thomas

July 15th, 1894.

The No. 142 Pleasant Home Furnace which you placed in my house last fall, after a winter's trial, has given good satisfaction. Although your furnace is a coal furnace, we used only soft stove wood, only using a half ton of coal as a trial, which indicated about five or six tons for a season's requirements.

OUR FURNACE BOOK

From E. MACINTYRE, St. Thomas

August 19th, 1894.

I have great pleasure in stating that the No. 142 Pleasant Home Furnace which A. E. Hamilton put in my house is giving me the best of satisfaction. I had another furnace in my house in 1891, but it proved a failure and the firm had to remove it, and two other firms refused to give me an estimate for heating it, fearing the house was a hard one to heat, but your furnace will heat it more than we want with very little fuel. I used only four tons of coal with a little rough wood in the spring and fall.

From J. Z. LONG & SON, Architects, St. Thomas

May 2nd, 1895.

We have selected and used in our practice the last two seasons twenty-four of your Pleasant Home and Marvel Furnaces, all of which have been put in by your Mr. A. E. Hamilton, of this city. Twenty-three of the contracts were secured by Mr. Hamilton in public competition. None of the above furnaces give us any trouble, nor have we heard a complaint from those using them. We had a No. 142 Pleasant Home placed in our own house last fall, and after one season's trial feel pleased to express our satisfaction. We therefore cheerfully recommend your furnaces as first class heaters, your firm as honorable and square dealers, and Mr. Hamilton as a first class mechanic and obliging gentleman.

From R. CUNNINGHAM, Thornton

The No. 35 Hilborn Furnace that I purchased from your agent, Mr. Hartman, five years ago, has given me every satisfaction, being strong and durable, easily cleaned, and has never cost me a cent for repairs, and in fact it looks just as good as when I got it. We have kept plants in the hall upstairs and down (hall door facing west, no storm door or sash,) all through the severe cold weather this winter, and none of them were frozen. I can recommend it as being durable and a good heater.

From J. A. STEWART, Thornton

The No. 34 Maple Leaf Wood Furnace placed in my house last fall by S. B. It burns no more wood than a common box stove, and heats the whole house. I am so pleased with it that I would not take $500 for it, that is if it could not be replaced. I can safely say your furnaces are giving by far the best satisfaction in this locality.

From CHAS. McDONALD, Wyoming

Your request, asking me how I like the furnace you put in for me last fall, to hand. Wishing you the success I consider they deserve.

From W. PERCIVAL, Montreal, Jet.

I am pleased to inform you that the Marvel Furnace supplied by you has given every satisfaction, your guarantee being more than fulfilled in every particular. I consider it economical in use, and, after three seasons' (two severe winters) trial without repairs, think it in every way superior to hot water heating, first, in original cost, second, in thorough ventilation of the different rooms, third, in consumption of fuel, fourth, simplicity, and fifth, cost of repairs. I have recommended them to my friends, and several of them have purchased, all being perfectly satisfied.

The No. 33 Hilborn Wood Furnace which you put in for me last fall, has worked nicely all winter. It is a very powerful heater and very economical with fuel. I commenced fires about the 15th November, and up to this date have not used six cords of wood, three-fourths of which was rough unmerchantable windfalls and green stuff, and the whole would average about $2.50 per cord. The only trouble I have had with the furnace is preventing too much heat.

From WM. BYERS, Truro, N.S.

The No. 35 Hilborn Wood Furnace which Mr. Jamieson placed in my house last fall, has given entire satisfaction. It is very economical on fuel, not using more than eight cords of wood for heating a two-story building. It is easily regulated and will burn any kind of rough wood. I can cheerfully recommend it to anyone requiring a first-class heater.
